things to do

▶ Barrio de la Villa

This is the original Moorish centre of the town. Its narrow, winding streets and small squares, the traditional lime facing of its walls and the colours of its flowers takes you back to another age.

▶ Balcon del Adarve

A cliff edge forming a natural balcony which used to be used for the defence of the town, and which looks out over the peaceful Andalusian countryside.

▶ The Castle

"The tower of homage" in Priego's castle has been declared a national monument and has excellent views from its high walls.

▶ Its majestic churches

The churches of Priego are a perfect example of the architectural style known as "andalucain baroque": The Church of the Asunción, whose tabernacle has been declared a national monument, is one of the most impressive existing pieces of this artistic style. The churches of Aurora, San Francisco, Carmen, Mercedes, San Pedro, San Juan de Dios, and of the Angustias all have facades which are as fine as their decorated interiors.

▶ Carnicerías Reales

One of the most outstanding features of Priego de Córdoba is the Carnicerías Reales (a former slaughterhouse) Its beautiful façade is in the mannerist style, and inside you will find a galleried patio, and a beautiful stone, spiral staircase.

▶ La Fuente del Rey

The town's most emblematic national monument, and without doubt its crowning glory, made up of 3 pools and surrounded by 139 fountain heads with a continual flow of water.

▶ La Fuente de la Salud

In the same local square as the Fuente del Rey this is also a national monument, with a frontpiece in the mannerist style.

▶ Its Museums

Seven museums can be found in the towns of Priego de Córdoba. The "Museo-Casa Natal", a museum and birthplace of a former President of the Second Republic, the Niceto Alcalá Zamora y Torres; the Archaeological Museum where important artefacts from the town's past are displayed; the Antonio Povedano Center of Modern Spanish Landscape Art; the Ethnographic Museum of Castil de Campos, the Museum of the Almond in Zamoranos, and the Mycological Garden.

countryside and villages

The municipal area of Priego de Córdoba is not limited to one urban nucleus, but, on the contrary, the countryside is dotted with small villages which give the area a special kind of picturesque beauty. Priego de Córdoba is situated in the Subbética Natural Park where the special geology and abundance of water have created a natural beauty surprising in the variety it offers.

A natural environment in which to enjoy your visit with a host of activities.

The Mycological Garden is part of the Network of Botanical Gardens of Andalucía. Its uniqueness, its value to the conservation of fungus species and its mission to educate and involve the general public—all combine to form a special contribution to the sustainability of the area, and offer a high quality tourist attraction for nature lovers.
